

GOODWIN COLLEGE OF PROFESSIONAL STUDIES

Drexel University's Goodwin College of Professional Studies provides students with the skills necessary to collaborate, negotiate, and effectively lead in today's workplace. With a curriculum focused on developing ethical individual and organizational frameworks, fostering the interpersonal intelligence necessary to lead others, and enhancing technical savvy, students in the college learn to think and act strategically to achieve results wherever they are.

Taught by world-class faculty, students in the college learn practical, in-demand skills that can be applied immediately to their fields. Goodwin's professors are career professionals bringing real-world industry experience to their virtual classrooms — better preparing students to apply their education to many fields, including project management, communications, human resources, finance, marketing, public health, and more. With online and part-time flexibility, students can advance their career at their pace and around their goals.

Through accessing the college's vast industry expertise and professional network, students graduate ahead of the curve in today's global workplace. The next generation of leadership begins here.
